For those of us who has been in the line of business regardless of time, we tend to do a lot of planning, analysis, projections and benchmarking during the last quarter of the previous year, we prepare for the new year that will arrive.

Regardless of what industry we are in, we tend to capture what the future holds for us by projecting what we like to achieve, planning what we like to happen. Some may just sit back, relax and see what will arrive.

In retrospect, the 2006 brought me in a lot of activities both within my business and personal life. Decisions to do business with, engaged with new business opportunities, formed new associations, met new colleagues in the industry, received accolades for the jobs well done, earned additional knowledge, gained more friends, shared short moments but fulfilling time with less privileged individuals and families. Spending time with family members and friends alike during vacation times. These made me more fulfilled both in my career and personal life.

Productivity is synonymous to time while challenges can also be a crossroad.

There is always a challenging time in every business as well as personal life. Overcoming these are time consuming but having the virtue of patience, right attitude and positive thinking are essentials that will provide guidance to resolutions.

The Year 2007 illustrates the landscape of the future. What strategies to take and action items to implement are emerging endlessly . However, taking one step at a time is a rule of thumb. Set your goals and define each goal. Work on them and accomplish with confidence. Work at your own leisure. Consider them as a journey to a meaningful life, most of all enjoy it. There is nothing more fulfilling accomplishment than something you put your heart into it, where recipient of your actions have equally got satisfaction.

"Caring and sharing are spiritually enriching, lending a moment with your listening skills and heart to less privileged individuals make them feel valued" - Juntee Terrenal
